Biographical / Historical

David A. Kessler was born May 31, 1951, in New York City. He graduated magna cum laude from Amherst College in 1973 and received a law degree from the University of Chicago in 1978, an M.D. from Harvard Medical School in 1979, and an advanced certificate in business from New York University's Graduate School of Business Administration in 1986. Kessler served as special assistant to the president of Montefiore Medical Center (1982-1984) and as medical director of The Hospital of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine before being appointed as the commissioner of the United States Food and Drug Administration (1990-1997). From 1997 to 2003, Kessler was dean of the Yale University School of Medicine. In 2003, Kessler became the dean and vice chancellor of medical affairs at the University of California San Francisco School of Medicine.

Scope and Contents

The David A. Kessler Papers are almost entirely comprised of materials documenting Kessler's tenure as commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (1990-1997). There are no materials documenting his professional or personal life prior to his confirmation as FDA commissioner, and other than speeches, there is no documentation of his term as dean of the Yale University School of Medicine (1997-).

The majority of the Papers were assembled by Kessler as he researched and wrote A Question of Intent (2001, Public Affairs), a recounting of his tenure as FDA commissioner and a study of the attempt by the FDA to secure regulation of nicotine as a drug. In the course of the book preparation, the author created various filing systems for the documentation and there was overlap and duplication between systems. Kessler's filing system has been maintained in the organization of the papers and researchers will often need to search several series to ensure they have located all materials on a given subject. The documentation collected by Kessler from tobacco company websites, legal suits against the tobacco companies, and various governmental hearings about the addictive nature of nicotine were not accessioned. Of the remaining materials, emphasis was placed on capturing documentation and files that were created or generated specifically by Kessler.

Given the wide availability, particularly on the Internet, of once secret tobacco company documents and other materials related to the health consequences of smoking, and their permanent preservation by the Tobacco Control Archives of the University of California at San Francisco (www.library.ucsf.edu/tobacco/), the most significant research material in the Kessler papers are the transcripts of the many interviews he conducted for his book. The persons interviewed ranged from government officials, leaders of anti-smoking organizations, reporters for major newspapers, and partners in law firms, to employees of tobacco companies. Other issues of concern to Kessler as FDA commissioner included accurate labeling of the contents of food products, breast implants, drug tampering, and adequate funding for the agency. They are primarily documented in the General Files, FDA Files, and Briefing Books series.

Arrangement

Arranged in nine series: I. General Files, 1953-2000; II. Speeches, 1990-2000; III. Chronological Files, 1977-1997; IV. Food and Drug Administration Commissioner's Files, 1952-1997; V. Scrapbooks, 1990-1991; VI. Briefing Books, 1950-1997; VII. Video Tapes, 1990-1997; VIII. Interviews, 1994-2000; IX. Informant Files, 1961-1998.

Collection Contents

Series I: General Files, 1953-2000

Arranged alphabetically, the series includes memoranda, correspondence, reports, and other documents related to a variety of public health issues, but predominantly tobacco. Folder titles and headings created by Kessler and his staff have been preserved. There is considerable overlap and possible duplication with Series III and Series IV.

Series II: Speeches, 1990-2000

The series consists of speeches made by Kessler while commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration and dean of the Yale University School of Medicine. The speeches were removed from fourteen notebooks and are arranged chronologically; an index to them can be found in the first folder of box eleven. Sixteen folders of "Miscellaneous remarks," which are not included in the notebooks or the index, are listed alphabetically at the end of the series.

Series III: Chronological Files, 1977-1997

The Chronological Files relate to the efforts of the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco as a controlled substance. Culled and copied from other FDA files, the series includes clippings, memoranda, reports, and other documents that provide a narrative of the struggle of the FDA and other groups seeking to assign culpability to the tobacco industry for the health hazards of cigarettes and other products. There is considerable topical overlap and duplication with materials in Series I and IV.

Series IV: Food and Drug Administration Commissioner's Files, 1952-1997

Arranged alphabetically, the series consists of files Kessler copied and took with him after resigning from the FDA in 1997. Along with materials about tobacco, the series includes documentation of drug approval, the Competitiveness Council, Robitussin, and Similac. Folder titles and headings created by Kessler and his staff have been preserved. There may be considerable topical overlap and duplication with materials in Series I and Series III.

Series VII: Videotapes, 1990-1997

Following the organizational scheme of Kessler's office, the video tapes are arranged in two sections: Numbered and Unnumbered. Each section follows a loose chronological order. All of the tapes feature Kessler's appearances on news programs and talk shows or at conferences and hearings. The numbered videos were selected out of a greater whole of recordings that featured tobacco related news coverage not specific to Kessler's involvement, which explains the gap between numbers.

Original video tapes may not be played; researchers must have use copies made.

Original audiovisual materials, as well as preservation and duplicating masters, may not be played. Researchers must consult use copies, or if none exist must pay for a use copy, which is retained by the repository. Researchers wishing to obtain an additional copy for their personal use should consult Copying Services information on the Manuscripts and Archives web site.

Series VIII: Interviews, 1994-2000

The series consists of transcripts (both hard copy and floppy disk) and audio cassette recordings of interviews Kessler conducted in the course of the FDA initiative to have tobacco regulated as a drug and during research for his book A Question of Intent. The interviews are separated into two sections: Author interviews and Miscellaneous interviews. Each section includes three sub-sections: Transcripts, 3 1/4 inch floppy disks, and Audio cassette recordings, each of which is arranged alphabetically by interviewee. For a complete list of interviews, consult the Author Interviews Appendix and the Miscellaneous Interviews Appendix, which are available in the print finding aid in the repository.

Kessler also had many of the interviews indexed. The indexes, along with miniaturized copies of the transcripts, can be found in boxes 44-45.

As part of his work, Kessler recorded interviews with tobacco company executives, government officials, legal and medical scholars, and others involved with the initiative to regulate tobacco and the associated litigation against tobacco companies. The interviews provide extensive documentation of this struggle, told by major players on both sides. Researchers should consult Series IX for additional interviews.
